Workshop Leader: Caroline Levine, Cornell University

These days it feels increasingly urgent to show how valuable scholarly research is

February 16, 2018
2PM-5:30PM
A reception will follow the event
RSVP to Courtney Mansfield at cmans@bu.edu by February 1, 2017

This event is aimed at PhD Students

Photonics Colloquium Room, Photonics Center
8 St. Mary’s St.
Boston, MA

Scholars often find it difficult to communicate their findings to non-academic audiences. This workshop will explore how we might use narratives, visualizations, slide shows, podcasts, tweets, op-eds, and live discussions in effective ways that do justice to the complexities of our knowledge without losing our audiences.

Caroline Levine is the David and Kathleen Ryan Professor of the Humanities at Cornell University. She has worked in a number of different public platforms, including radio and television interviews, public presentations, op-eds, and a new podcast series at Cornell called “What Makes Us Human?”