	Anita Kostecki, MD	Family Medicine with Advanced Obstetrics	Assistant Professor	Anita Kostecki, MD is a Clinical Assistant Professor of Family Medicine at Boston University. She completed medical school and family medicine residency at UMass, followed by an Obstetrics Fellowship in Texas. Her clinical focus is on Maternal and Infant Health, and she works primarily on the Maternity Unit at Boston Medical Center. Prior to coming to BU in 2017, she was Assistant Professor and Director of Maternal and Newborn Inpatient Services for Family Medicine at UMass. She has provided family reproductive health care at the Edward M. Kennedy Community Health Center in Worcester since 1996. She has a special interest in trauma-informed practice in her professional and personal life, and has completed specialized training in this area.
	Craig Noronha, MD	Department of Medicine/ General Internal Medicine	Associate Professor	Dr. Craig Noronha brings over 13 years of experience as an Associate Program Director for the Internal Medicine Residency Program. As a dedicated medical educator he has led dozens of workshops for trainees and faculty. His scholarly areas of interest have included residency scheduling models, high value care, and feedback exchanges. He works clinically as an internist in both the inpatient and outpatient settings.
	Eric Marks, MD	Department of Medicine/ Hematology and Oncology	Assistant Professor	I am an oncologist and a clinician-educator. Education has always been central to my career goals. Before medical school, I taught at a local high school. Throughout my training and early career, I have consistently sought opportunities to teach and provide mentorship to others. At BU, I have also assumed several roles in UME and GME. In doing so, I have overhauled and modernized the way that oncology is taught in our pre-clerkship curriculum.
	Shaleen Chakyayil, MD	General Internal Medicine	Assistant Professor	I attended medical school at Boston University School of Medicine and completed an internal medicine residency at Boston Medical Center. I have since been faculty of the General Internal Medicine section and primarily spend my clinical time in primary care. I have an area of expertise in quality improvement. I currently teach the quality improvement curriculum to the internal medicine residents and I am a faculty member of BMC QI hub.
	Sheina Theodore, MD	Surgery/Trauma & Acute Care Surgery	Assistant Professor	I joined Boston Medical Center in Fall of 2022 as faculty in the Trauma and Acute Care Surgery Division and became Assistant Professor of Surgery at the BU Chobanian & Avedisian School of Medicine. I received my bachelor's degree, cum laude, from the City College of New York, Sophie Davis School of Biomedical Education. I received my medical degree from the Geisinger Commonwealth School of Medicine in Pennsylvania and went on to general surgery residency at Baystate Medical Center in Springfield. I completed my clinical training in summer 2022 as a Surgical Critical Care fellow at Boston Medical Center.
